

Heber Bank Block Announces New Tenants

Mercantile building restored to its original 1930s look

BY JENNIFER BOLINGBROKE
Special to The Wave

Four new tenants held an open house at the Heber Bank Block Building last Thursday to inform the community of the variety of services that will be available there. Local city and county officials and dozens of citizens attended the event. Owners and employees of the new businesses were on hand to welcome guests and answer questions.

Originally built in 1904, the Bank Block was renovated and the historic "Heber Mercantile" building was rebuilt to look as it did in the 1930's. "We are delighted with the way the project is turning out," Michael Sloan said. "We had to do a lot of demolition on the building before we could start building again and it's exciting to see our plans nearing completion."

Perhaps the crowning jewel of this renovation is the fact that a bank will once again be located at the Bank Block Building. The Bank of Heber City, as it was known, opened in 1904 and was the first community bank to service this valley's banking needs. The new tenant, Heber Valley National Bank, hopes to offer the same home-town service that their predecessor did, with all the conveniences of a modern facility.

"Heber Valley National Bank is a brand-new, independent, closely held bank," said John Stevenson, president. "We operate three banks in Colorado and Heber is the type of community we enjoy servicing. The Valley's future is very exciting and we are thrilled to have the opportu-

Bank hopes to be open this spring and will be a full service bank.

Next door in the Heber Mercantile Building, a sales office for the Lodge at Stillwater has opened. This world-class resort destination, located off of U.S.-40 near the Jordanelle Reservoir, will offer a first-class lodge with shops and restaurants. Condominium owners will enjoy year round use with a variety of activities located nearby. From skiing at some of the world's best resorts in the winter to water-skiing at the reservoir during the summer, the Lodge at Stillwater is sure to be a one-of-a-kind four season retreat haven.

A hand milled staircase in the Heber Mercantile Building leads customers to the upstairs offices where two new tenants, Old Republic Title Company of Utah and Tesch, Thompson & Vance, LLC are setting up business.

Jennifer Robert of, Old Republic Title Company is busy making plans for the completion of their office. While still under construction, it's easy to see that they will have a beautiful area in which to fill their customer's needs. A large window overlooks the beautiful Tiffany glass chandelier that lights the stairway below.

"With offices located in Park City, Provo and Salt Lake, we felt that an office in Heber would tie together all of the areas that we service," Robert said. "We have been doing business in the Valley already and it will be a benefit to our customers to have a local office."

Old Republic Title has done work for the Lodge at Stillwater

Thompson & Vance have been servicing the residents of Park City, Summit County and Wasatch County since 1993 out of an office on Main Street in Park City. "We have a lot of clients in the Heber Valley already," stated Amy Price, Heber Office Manager. "We felt we could accommodate their needs better by having an office in this community."

Tesch, Thompson & Vance will have six attorneys servicing their Heber office. They offer a full range of services as each member of the firm specializes in different areas of practice. Because of this, they have the ability to service a wide range of clients including real estate developers, government agencies, real estate brokerage firms, banks and individuals. They are eager to be of service to residents of the Valley and will tailor services and fee structures to the needs of their clients.

Some office and retail space is still available for lease at the Heber Bank Block. Building amenities include on-site, off-street parking, professional property, 100 percent ADA compliant structure, first and second floor bathrooms, on-site storage, and elevator service.

Much attention has been given to see that the historical integrity of the building remains, making the Heber Bank Block Building a unique atmosphere in which to operate a business. For lease information contact Michael Sloan at (435)649-4550 or (800)409-2422.

Heber Bank Block Announces New Tenants

Mercantile building restored to its original 1930s look

BY JENNIFER BOLINGBROKE
The Wasatch Wave

Four new tenants held an open house at the Heber Bank Block Building last Thursday to inform the community of the variety of services that will be available there. Local city and county officials and dozens of citizens attended the event. Owners and employees of the new businesses were on hand to welcome guests and answer questions.

Originally built in 1904, the Bank Block was renovated and the historic "Heber Mercantile" building was rebuilt to look as it did in the 1930's. "We are delighted with the way the project is turning out," Michael Sloan said. "We had to do a lot of demolition on the building before we could start building again and it's exciting to see our plans nearing completion."

Perhaps the crowning jewel of this renovation is the fact that a bank will once again be located at the Bank Block Building. The Bank of Heber City, as it was known, opened in 1904 and was the first community bank to service this valley's banking needs. The new tenant, Heber Valley National Bank, hopes to offer the same home-town service that their predecessor did, with all the conveniences of a modern facility.

"Heber Valley National Bank is a brand-new, independent, closely held bank," said John Stevenson, president. "We operate three banks in Colorado and Heber is the type of community we enjoy servicing. The Valley's future is very exciting and we are thrilled to have the opportunity to be a part of that future."

The Heber Valley National

Bank hopes to be open this spring and will be a full service bank.

Next door in the Heber Mercantile Building, a sales office for the Lodge at Stillwater has opened. This world-class resort destination, located off of U.S. 40 near the Jordanelle Reservoir, will offer a first-class lodge with shops and restaurants. Condominium owners will enjoy year round use with a variety of activities located nearby. From skiing at some of the world's best resorts in the winter to water-skiing at the reservoir during the summer, the Lodge at Stillwater is sure to be a one-of-a-kind, four season retreat haven.

A hand milled staircase in the Heber Mercantile Building leads customers to the upstairs offices where two new tenants, Old Republic Title Company of Utah and Tesch, Thompson & Vance, LLC are setting up business.

Jennifer Robert of Old Republic Title Company is busy making plans for the completion of their office. While still under construction, it's easy to see that they will have a beautiful area in which to fill their customer's needs. A large window overlooks the beautiful Tiffany glass chandelier that lights the stairway below.

"With offices located in Park City, Provo and Salt Lake, we felt that an office in Heber would tie together all of the areas that we service," Robert said. "We have been doing business in the Valley already and it will be a benefit to our customers to have a local office."

Old Republic Title has done work for the Lodge at Stillwater and the development in Midway known as Wintergreen.

The offices of Tesch,

Thompson & Vance have been servicing the residents of Park City, Summit County and Wasatch County since 1993 out of an office on Main Street in Park City. "We have a lot of clients in the Heber Valley already," stated Amy Price, Heber Office Manager. "We felt we could accommodate their needs better by having an office in this community."

Tesch, Thompson & Vance will have six attorneys servicing their Heber office. They offer a full range of services as each member of the firm specializes in different areas of practice. Because of this, they have the ability to service a wide range of clients including real estate developers, government agencies, real estate brokerage firms, banks and individuals. They are eager to be of service to residents of the Valley and will tailor services and fee structures to the needs of their clients.

Some office and retail space is still available for lease at the Heber Bank Block Building. Amenities include on-site, off-street parking; professional property; 100 percent ADA compliant structure; first and second floor bathrooms; on-site storage; and elevator service.

Much attention has been given to see that the historical integrity of the building remains, making the Heber Bank Block Building a unique atmosphere in which to operate a business. For lease information, contact Michael Sloan at (435) 649-4550 or (800) 409-2422.

MARCH 1, 2000

The Wasatch Wave

Heber Bank Block Announces New Tenants

Mercantile building restored to its original 1930s look

BY JENNIFER BOLINGBROKE
Special To The Wave

Four new tenants held an open house at the Heber Bank Block Building last Thursday to inform the community of the variety of services that will be available there. Local city and county officials and dozens of citizens attended the event. Owners and employees of the new businesses were on hand to welcome guests and answer questions.

Originally built in 1904, the Bank Block was renovated and the historic "Heber Mercantile" building was rebuilt to look as it did in the 1930's. "We are delighted with the way the project is turning out," Michael Sloan said. "We had to do a lot of demolition on the building before we could start building again and it's exciting to see our plans nearing completion."

Perhaps the crowning jewel of this renovation is the fact that a bank will once again be located at the Bank Block Building. The Bank of Heber City, as it was known, opened in 1904 and was the first community bank to service this valley's banking needs. The new tenant, Heber Valley National Bank, hopes to offer the same home-town service that their predecessor did, with all the conveniences of a modern facility.

"Heber Valley National Bank is a brand-new, independent, closely held bank," said John Stevenson, president. "We operate three banks in Colorado and Heber is the type of community we enjoy servicing. The Valley's future is very exciting and we

Bank hopes to be open this spring and will be a full service bank.

Next door in the Heber Mercantile Building, a sales office for the Lodge at Stillwater has opened. This world-class resort destination, located off of U.S.-40 near the Jordanelle Reservoir, will offer a first-class lodge with shops and restaurants. Condominium owners will enjoy year round use with a variety of activities located nearby. From skiing at some of the world's best resorts in the winter to water-skiing at the reservoir during the summer, the Lodge at Stillwater is sure to be a one-of-a-kind, four season retreat haven.

A hand milled staircase in the Heber Mercantile Building leads customers to the upstairs offices where two new tenants, Old Republic Title Company of Utah and Tesch, Thompson & Vance, LLC are setting up business.

Jennifer Robert of Old Republic Title Company is busy making plans for the completion of their office. While still under construction, it's easy to see that they will have a beautiful area in which to fill their customer's needs. A large window overlooks the beautiful Tiffany glass chandelier that lights the stairway below.

"With offices located in Park City, Provo and Salt Lake, we felt that an office in Heber would tie together all of the areas that we service," Robert said. "We have been doing business in the Valley already and it will be a benefit to our customers to have a local office."

Old Republic Title has done work for the Lodge at Stillwater

Thompson & Vance have been servicing the residents of Park City, Summit County and Wasatch County since 1993 out of an office on Main Street in Park City. "We have a lot of clients in the Heber Valley already," stated Amy Price, Heber Office Manager. "We felt we could accommodate their needs better by having an office in this community."

Tesch, Thompson & Vance will have six attorneys servicing their Heber office. They offer a full range of services as each member of the firm specializes in different areas of practice. Because of this, they have the ability to service a wide range of clients including real estate developers, government agencies, real estate brokerage firms, banks and individuals. They are eager to be of service to residents of the Valley and will tailor services and fee structures to the needs of their clients.

Some office and retail space is still available for lease at the Heber Bank Block. Building amenities include on-site, off-street parking; professional property; 100 percent ADA compliant structure; first and second floor bathrooms; on-site storage; and elevator service.

Much attention has been given to see that the historical integrity of the building remains, making the Heber Bank Block Building a unique atmosphere in which to operate a business. For lease information contact Michael Sloan at (435)649-4550 or (800)409-2422.

What more could you a

MARCH 1, 2000

The Wasatch Wave

Heber Bank Block Announces New Tenants

Mercantile building restored to its original 1930s look

BY JENNIFER BOLINGBROKE
Special To The Wave

Four new tenants held an open house at the Heber Bank Block Building last Thursday to inform the community of the variety of services that will be available there. Local city and county officials and dozens of citizens attended the event. Owners and employees of the new businesses were on hand to welcome guests and answer questions.

Originally built in 1904, the Bank Block was renovated and the historic "Heber Mercantile" building was rebuilt to look as it did in the 1930's. "We are delighted with the way the project is turning out," Michael Sloan said. "We had to do a lot of demolition on the building before we could start building again and it's exciting to see our plans nearing completion."

Perhaps the crowning jewel of this renovation is the fact that a bank will once again be located at the Bank Block Building. The Bank of Heber City, as it was known, opened in 1904 and was the first community bank to serve this valley's banking needs. The new tenant, Heber Valley National Bank, hopes to offer the same home-town service that their predecessor did, with all the conveniences of a modern facility.

"Heber Valley National Bank is a brand-new, independent, closely held bank," said John Stevenson, president. "We operate three banks in Colorado and Heber is the type of community we enjoy serving. The Valley's future is very exciting and we

Bank hopes to be open this spring and will be a full service bank."

Next door in the Heber Mercantile Building, a sales office for the Lodge at Stillwater has opened. This world-class resort destination, located off of U.S.-40 near the Jordanelle Reservoir, will offer a first-class lodge with shops and restaurants. Condominium owners will enjoy year round use with a variety of activities located nearby. From skiing at some of the world's best resorts in the winter to water-skiing at the reservoir during the summer, the Lodge at Stillwater is sure to be a one-of-a-kind, four season retreat haven.

A hand milled staircase in the Heber Mercantile Building leads customers to the upstairs offices where two new tenants, Old Republic Title Company of Utah and Tesch, Thompson & Vance, LLC are setting up business.

Jennifer Robert of Old Republic Title Company is busy making plans for the completion of their office. While still under construction, it's easy to see that they will have a beautiful area in which to fill their customer's needs. A large window overlooks the beautiful Tiffany glass chandelier that lights the stairway below.

"With offices located in Park City, Provo and Salt Lake, we felt that an office in Heber would be together all of the areas that we service," Robert said. "We have been doing business in the Valley already and it will be a benefit to our customers to have a local office."

Old Republic Title has done work for the Lodge at Stillwater and the development in Ar-

Thompson & Vance have been servicing the residents of Park City, Summit County and Wasatch County since 1993 out of an office on Main Street in Park City. "We have a lot of clients in the Heber Valley already," stated Amy Price, Heber Office Manager. "We felt we could accommodate their needs better by having an office in this community."

Tesch, Thompson & Vance will have six attorneys servicing their Heber office. They offer a full range of services as each member of the firm specializes in different areas of practice. Because of this, they have the ability to service a wide range of clients including real estate developers, government agencies, real estate brokerage firms, banks and individuals. They are eager to be of service to residents of the Valley and will tailor services and fee structures to the needs of their clients.

Some office and retail space is still available for lease at the Heber Bank Block. Building amenities include on-site, off street parking; professional property; 100 percent ADA compliant structure; first and second floor bathrooms; on-site storage and elevator service.

Much attention has been given to see that the historical integrity of the building remains making the Heber Bank Block Building a unique atmosphere in which to operate a business. For lease information, contact Michael Sloan at (435)649-4550 or (800)409-2422.

What more could you

